Problem

22. READING

Read the article. Then read it again and circle the word or phrase that correctly completes each sentence.

Food Fight!

On the fourth Wednesday of August, about 3,000 people gather in the Spanish town of Buñol, approximately 50 km west of Valencia, for the biggest food fight in the world.

The food fight is called "La Tomatina," and the tradition goes back more than sixty years. It began on a Wednesday in August of 1945 when a fight broke out between two people in the town square. Other people were quickly involved in the fight. Some people took tomatoes from a nearby vegetable stand and started throwing them. Soon everyone was throwing them. The police had to break up the fight.

One year later, many people still remembered the big tomato fight. They met at the square again, and this time they brought their own tomatoes. There was a similar fight, and again it was stopped by the police.

In the years that followed, people continued to meet in the town square with tomatoes. The fight was illegal, but it remained popular. In 1959, the town legalized the fight and set rules to follow:

- Tomatoes must be crushed before they are thrown.
- You're not allowed to throw anything except tomatoes.
- The fight begins at 11:00 A.M. and ends at 1:00 P.M. No tomatoes may be thrown before or after these times.
- You may not tear anyone's clothes.

Example:

La Tomatina is a (historical / harvest / religious) holiday.

- (1) The fight is held in (the town square / a vegetable market / Valencia).
- (2) La Tomatina is a fight (between two people / between the people and the police / involving a large group of people).
- (3) Now La Tomatina is (accepted / illegal / ignored) by the police.
- (4) You (should / have to / can't) crush the tomatoes before you throw them.
- (5) (Eating / Throwing / Making) tomatoes is an important part of La Tomatina.
- (6) In the past, the police (started / stopped / ignored) the tomato fights.
- (7) You can throw (only tomatoes / any vegetable / all kinds of food) at La Tomatina.

Example:

A: How can I give someone good wishes for the New Year?

B: Say, "Happy New Year!" The other person can answer, "Thanks, you too!" or "Happy New Year!"

(1)

A: My sister is getting married.

B: Congratulations! What are weddings like here?

A: The ceremony is simple. The real celebration is the reception. It's a big party with lots of food and dancing all night long.

(2)

A: Hey, Dan. Can I ask you something?

B: Sure. What's up?

A: I'm not sure of the customs here. I'm visiting someone's house tonight. Should I bring a gift for the host?

B: Yes. You should take a small gift.

A: Great. Thanks.

(3)

A: So, there's a holiday next week?

B: Yes. Everyone travels to be with their relatives. The airports and train stations are mobbed. It takes a long time to get anywhere.

(4)

A: What are you doing?

B: I'm sending some holiday cards.

A: Is that a tradition here?

B: Yes. Most people send cards to their friends and family.

(5)

A: How does your family celebrate Christmas?

B: Well, we pray. Then we get together with friends and relatives and give each other gifts.

A: That sounds nice.

(6)

A: I hear there's a holiday soon.

B: That's right—Carnaval.

A: How do you celebrate?

B: Everyone wears a costume and goes out into the streets. It's so much fun!

(7)

A: I'm not sure of the customs here. I heard something about throwing flowers at a wedding?

B: That's right—after the wedding ceremony, the bride throws her bouquet. All the single women try to catch it.

ESSAY

23. ANS:

- a. (Sample response:) Most weddings in my country are very formal. The bride usually wears a long dress, and it's almost always white. The groom usually wears a tuxedo or a suit. It's considered bad luck for the groom to see the bride on their wedding day before the time of the ceremony, so most couples spend their wedding day apart.
- b. (Sample response:) My favorite holiday is The Day of the Dead. It is a religious holiday. People may visit graves of close relatives, have picnics, and tell stories to remember the dead. They also make and share sugary candy shaped like animals or skulls.
